Day 1 - Barcelona, Spain03 May 2027, Mon | 00:00 - 18:00

Barcelona is a true global city of breathtaking architecture, countless world-class museums, bustling markets, colorful parks and high-end fashion. This town is big but perfectly discoverable on foot. Imposing Montjuïc Castle is a good starting point for a stunning panorama of the city, and the renowned Joan Miró museum and Catalanian national art museum are also in the area. One might fill an entire day strolling amidst the 12th- and 13th-century architecture of the Gothic Quarter and then checking out the extensive collection of the Museu Picasso. But Barcelona may be most renowned for the unmistakable imprint made on the city by architect Antoni Gaudí, from the spectacular unfinished church of La Sagrada Família to the whimsical Park Güell. More of his work can be found along tree-lined La Rambla, one of the world's most famous promenades and the perfect place to experience the striking architecture, designer shopping and delicious tapas of the city.

Day 2 - Palma de Mallorca, Balearic Islands, Spain04 May 2027, Tue | 08:00 - 22:00

The capital of the Balearic Islands, beautiful Palma is famous for La Seu, the massive Cathedral of Santa Maria overlooking the bay. The adjacent Aludaina Palace has been a royal residence since the 14th century, and the Gothic-style Bellver Castle houses the city's history museum. The Juan March Foundation Museum boasts a permanent collection of 70 works by the most important Spanish vanguard artists of the 20th century. Beachgoers will find abundant options offering water sports, sailing, horseback riding and more, and shoppers should check out Avenue Jaime III and the tree-lined Passeig del Born. The rest of Mallorca holds plenty of appeal as well, from the Carthusian monastery where George Sand and Frédéric Chopin once stayed to the remarkable stalactites of the underground lake known as Cuevas del Drach.

Day 3 - Mahon, Menorca, Balearic Islands, Spain05 May 2027, Wed | 08:00 - 17:00

The approach to Menorca reveals white houses clinging to rocks with a historic town rising above one of the world's largest natural harbors, used as a port since the 3rd century BC. King Island floats halfway in, featuring ruins of a 6th-century basilica. The streets of Menorca present an interesting blend of ancient treasures, such as the medieval wall of San Roque Arch and the relics in the Museu de Menorca, and more recent gems, including the grand Georgian homes that remain from the British occupation of the island.

The city's rich history is also reflected in its varied cuisine. A local cheese is named for Menorca, and the island is said to be the birthplace of mayonnaise. Hiking or biking a section of the Cami de Cavalls, the ancient path encircling the island, reveals Menorca's remarkable scenery, and the open-air museum of megalithic monuments begs to be explored.

Day 4 - Alghero, Sardinia, Italy06 May 2027, Thu | 09:00 - 19:00

With its blend of Italian and Catalan influences, Alghero's Old Town is breathtakingly beautiful and refreshingly unpretentious. You'll find Gothic and Catalan architecture around every corner of this authentic centro storico. Pull up a chair in a café in the shadow of one of the city's 16th century towers and sip a morning coffee before strolling along the pedestrianized Sea Walls, which run all the way from the Piazza Sulis to the marina. The views over to Capo Caccia on the horizon are amazing. Explore the marina and then head to Lido di San Giovanni for some relaxing beach time. Back in town, dine on local specialties like sea urchin or lobster before stopping off for a drink in one of the chic cafés of local "movida".

Day 5 - Calvi, Corsica, France07 May 2027, Fri | 09:00 - 19:00

With growing popularity as a beach resort, this small town on the northwest coast of Corsica is a delight to visit. Walk along the lively beachside promenade where you'll find restaurants, bars and shops. A 15th-century citadel built by the Genoese takes its place of prominence on the hilltop above the town, affording spectacular views of the harbor below. Visit Église Sainte-Marie, a charming pink church, and Notre Dame de la Serra, a 19th-century chapel. You'll see a plaque that commemorates the birthplace of Christopher Columbus, but the claim is controversial. For natural wonders, take a boat tour of the beautiful rock formations of the Scandola Nature Reserve, a UNESCO World Heritage site.

Day 6 - Saint-Tropez, France08 May 2027, Sat | 08:00 - 00:00

A jetsetter haven, Saint-Tropez is best known for its designer shopping, drink-and-dance-til-dawn nightlife, and ritzy beach clubs like Le Club 55 and Nikki Beach. After all, this is where French screen goddess Brigitte Bardot popularized the bikini in the 1950s, and to this day Bardot makes her home here. But another side of this once humble fishing village can be found in the hills far above the beachfront. Walk the narrow cobblestone streets and visit the 17th-century citadel for stunning views of the port.

Day 7 - Saint-Tropez, France09 May 2026, Sun | 00:00 - 23:00

A jetsetter haven, Saint-Tropez is best known for its designer shopping, drink-and-dance-til-dawn nightlife, and ritzy beach clubs like Le Club 55 and Nikki Beach. After all, this is where French screen goddess Brigitte Bardot popularized the bikini in the 1950s, and to this day Bardot makes her home here. But another side of this once humble fishing village can be found in the hills far above the beachfront. Walk the narrow cobblestone streets and visit the 17th-century citadel for stunning views of the port.

Day 8 - Nice, France10 May 2027, Mon | 07:00 - 00:00

Set between the beautiful Baie des Anges and the Alps, the sunny capital of la Côte d'Azur has long been admired for its beauty and sophistication. One of France's oldest cities, Nice blends its urban verve with plenty of seaside charm, a fantastic local food scene and a heritage that's steeped in pretty Italianate influences. In the narrow streets of Vieille Ville you'll find charming piazzettas, cozy cafés, traditional stores and a famous flower and grocery market. Take a stroll in the Place Massena, the city's impressive 19th century main square, or head to the iconic Promenade des Anglais, which showcases Belle Epoque grandeur alongside its lively beach scene. Take a seat at one of the promenade's bistros and dine on some superb 'cuisine niçoise'.
